Handwritten notes and signatures in the bottom right corner, including the word "Shant" and various scribbles.

Foreword

As the end of our senior year at Downingtown is drawing to a close and we are about to leave the school, never again to return as students, we turn the pages of time backward to see what we have accomplished, how we have aided the school, and what claim we have to fame and to the memories of those who follow in our footsteps.

Our hallway is quiet at 8 A. M.

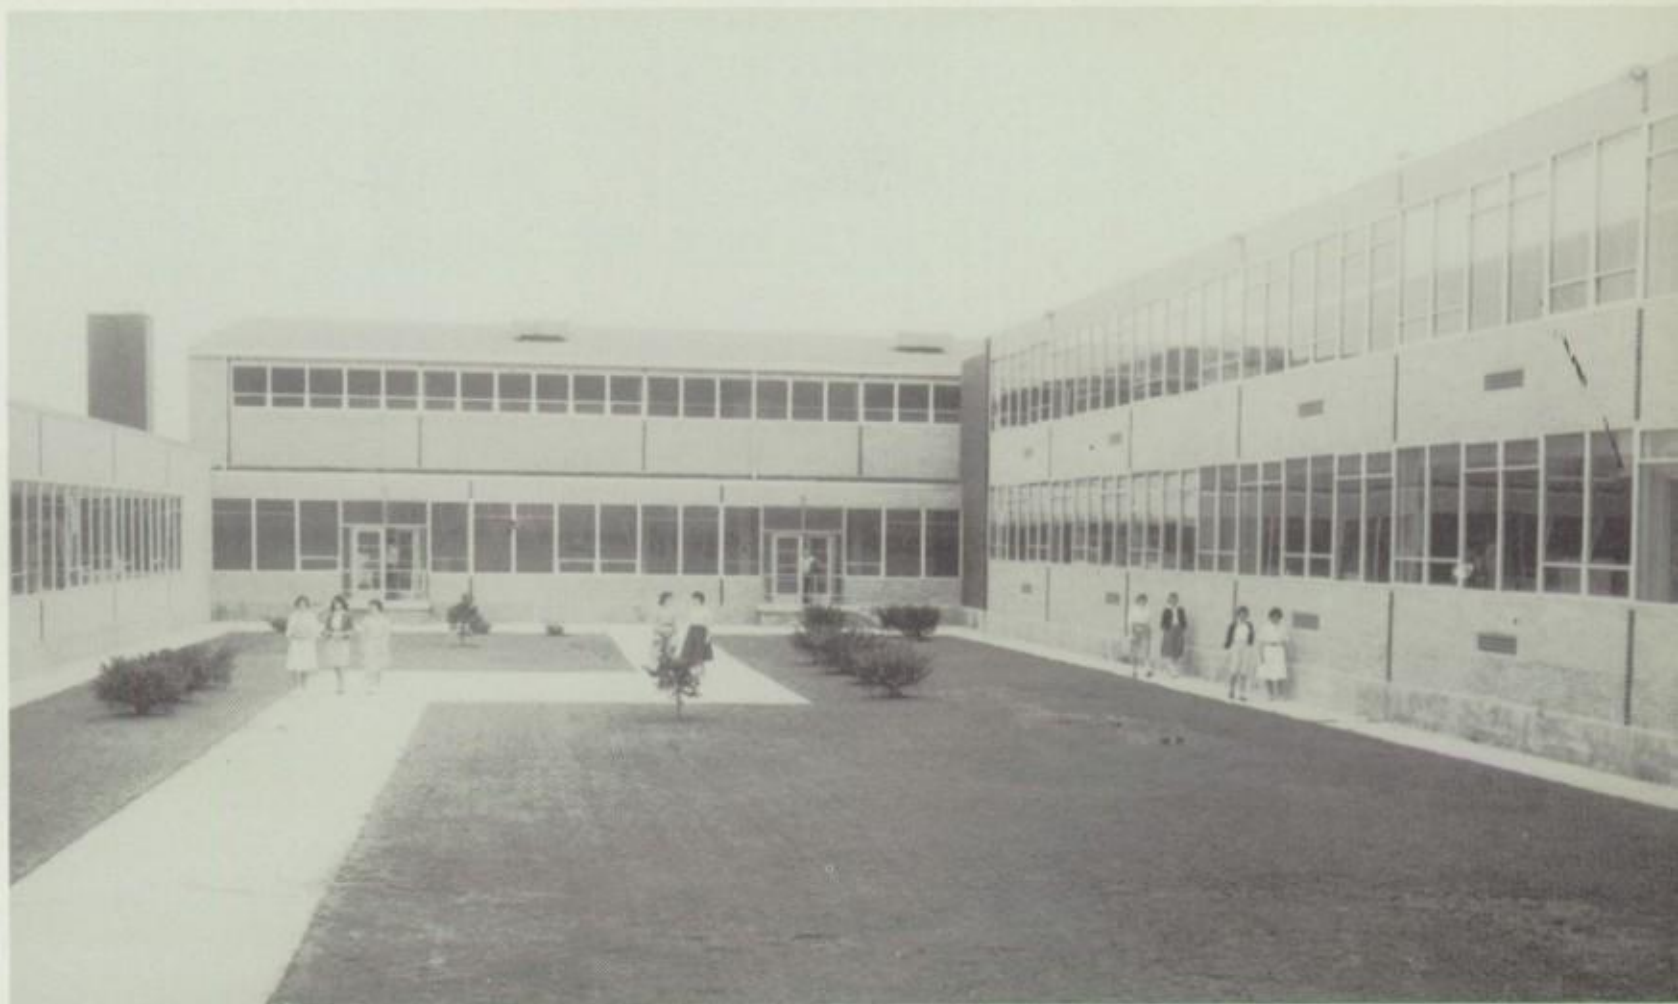

The cafeteria provides an opportunity for food and relaxation.

We gather here for assembly each week.

As many modern buildings do, our school has a courtyard.

This suite of rooms is attractive and functional.

We are sometimes reminded of past glories.

We, the members of the class of 1962, have completed our final year at Downingtown Joint Senior High School and have achieved our "emancipation from . . . book, birch, and pedagogue." At times our road was paved by trouble, but with the sincere interest and helpful advice of our principal and teachers, we were guided through three wonderfully exciting years. Our education has been well-rounded by classes, clubs, and other activities. These helped develop our present athletic, musical, artistic, literary, and scientific abilities. They were also instrumental in building good citizenship and high ideals. We learned good sportsmanship from participation in, and attendance at, athletic events. Truly, Downingtown Joint Senior High School has prepared us to be active, intelligent citizens in the future.

JUST PALS

Since a knowledge of the body and its function is important to everyone, Health is required for all students in the eleventh grade. In this picture students are demonstrating two aids to learning.

WE LOVE IT

Industrial Arts consists of the following areas: drafting, electronics, graphic arts, metalwork, and woodwork. By the time each boy completes this elective course, he should be prepared either to go on to school or to take a qualified job.

THE MACHINE VERSUS THE WORKER

Machines are a vital factor in the training of students for positions in the field of business. The Commercial Department offers three curricula in senior high school — bookkeeping, secretarial, and clerical.

WHAT'S COOKING

Cooking is only one of the areas of Home Economics; others are health and safe living, child care, housing, personal and community relationships, and sewing. The emphasis today is on the social significance of family living.

WHAT HAVE WE HERE—BRAINS

In this class of biology, the students are comparing the brain sizes of different animals. This is only one of the many fields studied in this course.

The three areas in science provided for senior high school students are biology, chemistry, and physics.

77 MUSIC STRIP

The Music Department provides enjoyment and training for those taking part in band, orchestra, and chorus. Although it teaches appreciation and fundamentals, one need not be a gifted musician to enter this doorway.

COOPERATION IS THE KEY WORD

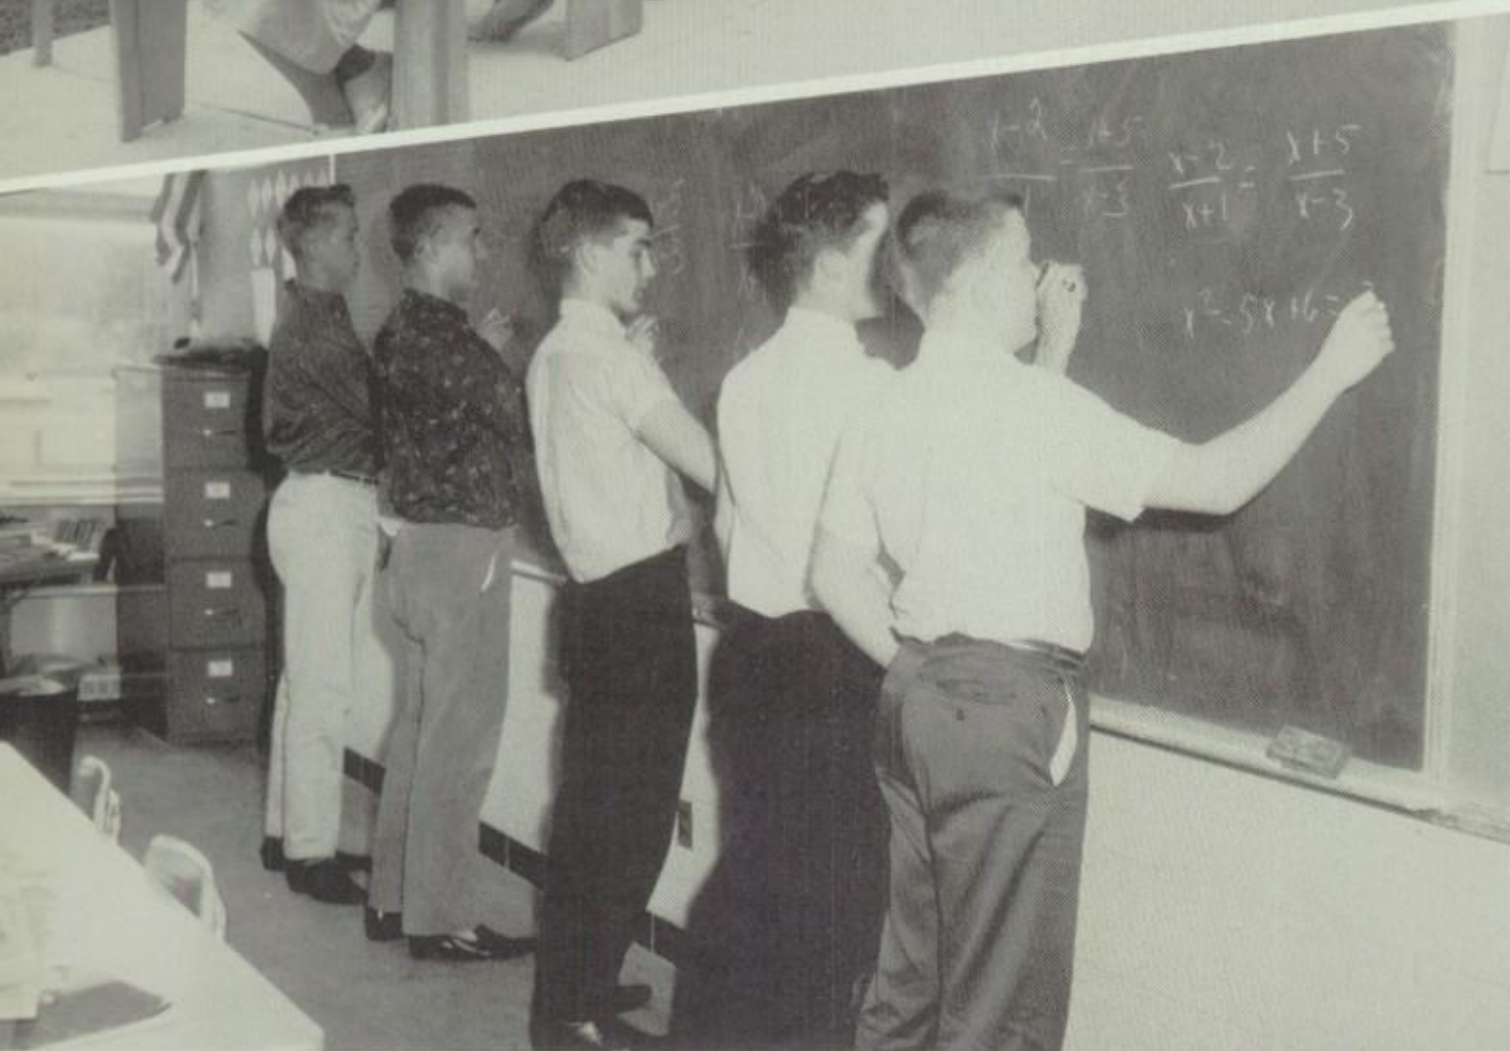

Shop is a necessary part of the Vocational Agriculture Course. This department is designed to teach proficiency in farming and consists of both instruction and supervised programs.

ON THE TERRACE

Although some students can paint, many cannot. However, the Art Curriculum provides an opportunity to do leathercraft, pottery, sculpturing, and printing, as well as the many phases of painting.

X EQUALS?

Algebra and its associated courses — mathematics, geometry, trigonometry—comprise the Mathematics Curriculum which, because of its many phases, is useful to every student.

THIS PLACE LOOKS INTERESTING

Want to expand your horizons? Wish to browse? Like to read? The library has something for everyone, and it is the one room in the school which is always available for both work and pleasure.

HISTORY IN THE MAKING

The study of current events is of vital importance in all classes of the Social Science Department. The courses offered give the students knowledge of the past, understanding of the problems of the present, and hope in the plans for the future.

HOLD IT

The activities of the Physical Education Department are as diversified as the individual students who engage in them. Mental, emotional, and social development, as well as physical efficiency, is the goal of these classes.

FOR BOYS ONLY

The boys who are majoring in agriculture seem to enjoy English. It is true that split infinitives are a far cry from "bossy" the cow, but good literature certainly brightens the life of all students regardless of their fields of endeavor.

ARE YOU LISTENING

Hearing a language spoken helps improve pronunciation and inflection. The Language Department teaches the students not only to read, speak, and write the language of other nationalities but also to understand their country, customs, and culture.

HELP

A knock at any time opens this door to advice and understanding. The aim of the Guidance Department is to help each individual with his problems whether they are personal, economic, or social.

NOT ANOTHER ONE

This picture is an example of an occurrence which Driver Education attempts to prevent. This course is designed to teach the fundamentals of safe driving and to develop a thoughtfulness for the rights of others.

The Downingtown Joint High School Board has the responsibility of providing the best possible educational facilities and opportunities for the students of our junior and our senior high schools.

Because their work is endless and many times unnoticed, the class of 1962 wishes to thank these men and women who have given freely of their time, their talents and themselves for the welfare of the schools and the students.

Sincerely yours,

RAYMOND R. BAUGHER

Pictures aid memory

The first foreign exchange student from Downingtown High School in the American Field Service Program was Helen Simmons who spent the summer of 1961 in Barnstorf, Germany.

Helen went to Europe on the M. S. Seven Seas of the German Line. During the trip the students had classes in the language of the country in which they would live. They also attended forums and orientation periods where they discussed the problems and the culture of the country to which they were going.

Barnstorf, in the northwestern part of Germany is a small village of 5,000 people whom Helen found to be friendly and warm-hearted. Most of the houses are of brick and there are many fishermen's homes with thatched roofs.

In the large cities the roads are paved, but in the villages they are dirt. The Autobahn, built by the German government and kept up by taxes (especially those on gasoline), resembles our turnpike. Everyone rides bicycles which travel on the right side of the road and which must have a bell if the rider does not wish to pay a fine.

The store hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. They never open in the evenings and they close on Saturday at 2 p.m. There are no sales taxes because all taxes are taken from salaries. There are additional taxes for persons who own a car and for those who belong to church. The taxes taken from the salaries of church members pay the salary of the minister.

The teenagers in Germany enjoy movies, miniature golf, dancing, riding, tennis, and swimming. On dates the girls pay their own way.

The schools in Germany differ from ours in many ways. They are in session six days a week from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. with a six weeks holiday in summer. There are no extracurricular activities, and in the school building there are no lockers or drinking fountains. The atmosphere within the school is very formal (the students rise when the teacher enters and leaves the room). Since the teachers move from room to room, there is a ten minute break between classes.

Helen said she enjoyed the slower pace of living, the beautiful flowers and gardens everywhere, and the German food, especially the tasty, brown bread and "wurst." It was certainly very interesting to meet and to live with people of a different country, speaking a different language. It was wonderful to share their lives and to take an active part in their everyday activities.

The Little Dog Laughed

When she arrives home from college, Laurie Huntington, a psychology major, finds her family tied into a bunch of psychological knots. Her father is worried about business, her mother driven by social ambitions, and her brother upset by a love affair.

Laurie, confident that her college courses qualify her to straighten out her family's tangled lives, goes zealously to work. The house becomes a jumble of notebooks and strange blocks, while everybody in it is getting word association tests, intelligence tests, and plenty of endurance tests.

The story concerns a romantic teacher, Agnes Franklin, who arranges to exchange the senior male honor students between Wickapoque High School and a high school in Ohio. Peggy Wilson, a local senior, is to be escorted to the Spring Prom by Ched Armstrong, the Ohio exchange student.

Peggy's younger sister, Diana and Diana's friend Carol, become suspicious of Ched, who is really Dino Derkin, a hoodlum wanted by the police.

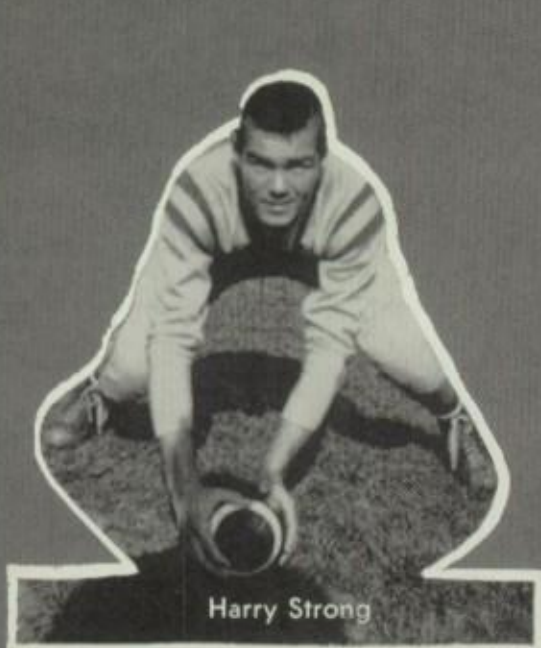

After Derkin terrorizes the Wilsons for several hours, he is finally captured by Diana in her crab net.

Sincerest congratulations to you—1961 football team. Your record was very commendable and as a team you were excellent representatives of D.J.H.S. Each week you played, you showed that you enjoyed the game, that you possessed pride in your work, that you were willing to discipline yourselves and that you had mastered the fundamentals of football. Your excellent team work and tremendous defensive ability primed your opponents to label you a "fiery band of mitey mites."

Honors were given to several of you: Sam Westmoreland, first team all-league end; Bill Pollock, Ellis Brown, and Jim Price, second team all-league; James Yamshak, Don Johnson, Alvin Wells, Harry Stong, and Gordon Flowers, honorable mention. You certainly gained respect as one of the outstanding teams in the Ches-Mont League.

Tom,
 I wish you health,
 I wish you wealth,
 I wish you friends galore,
 I wish you heaven after death,
 I can not wish you more.
 Always keep that charming smile that attracts the girls, and never change your ways. Remember all the good times we had together.
 Remember the "great horse ride".
